For the Tree to Drop

By Lissa Brennan

*World Premiere

Trust Arts Education Center

Downtown Series

"Making the monsters invisible don't make them go away. It just means we can't see how close they getting," says Estella, a slave who can't turn a blind eye to the horrifying injustices she has seen. Watch her tragic tale unfold as she proves that ownership of the body does not include ownership of the soul.

How the Other Half Loves

Directed by Martin Giles

The Stephen Foster Memorial

Mainstage Series

Here's the secret: someone is having an affair! Don't tell anyone, especially their spouses or The Featherstones, because you won't want to ruin the chaotic hilarity of three couples in nefarious relationships trying to puzzle this secret together during two simultaneous dinner parties.

Sharon's Grave

Directed by Aoife Spillane-Hinks

The Stephen Foster Memorial

Mainstage Series

Trouble is brewing as Donal Conlee takes to his deathbed. His lonely daughter must fight for her land and protect her brother against the scheming of their malignant cousin. This story of land-lust, mystery and folklore is a classic tale, set against the rugged North Atlantic coastline of Ireland in the 1920s. Witness the mastery of one of Ireland's foremost storytellers and playwrights as he weaves the tale of this Conlee family feud together with the mythical story of a beautiful Celtic princess, Sharon, who meets an untimely end. Similar to the plays of Synge or McDonagh, this is a show for all the family to enjoy.

Oliver Twist

by Charles Dickens

Adapted by Alan Stanford

Mainstage Series

We hate to love, we love to hate or we simply adore the rich characters in this famous Dickensian story, adapted by PICT's Artistic & Executive Director, Alan Stanford. Join Oliver, who is lost in a world of criminals and held in the clutches of an avaricious old man, when a saint of unusual pedigree finally brings all to right.
